PLAN TO STAMP OUT CIGARETTE SMOKING AMONG YOUNG BOYS

WILL PROSECUTE TOBACCONISTS
WHO VIOLATE STATUTE PRO-HIBITING SALE OF CIGAR-ETTES TO MINORS.

POLICE PUSH CRUSADE

School and City Officials Will Co-Operate With Police in Stamping
Out the All-Too-Prevalent Practice.

Because of the great amount of smoking among the minors of the city of Janesville, and because of the flagrant violation of the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors, a crusade against these intermingling of the two classes is about to be launched. The crusade is being pushed by the police and the school officials, and also by the youngsters who have carried on their legal trade for some time in perfect peace and freedom, and also to the youngsters who have cultivated the habit of cigarette smoking before the age permitted by law.

So insistent have become the demands of public spirited citizens that definite, concerted action will be taken against all violators of the law. The police and administrative officers of the municipal government with the active co-operation of the school authorities.

The 1915 session of the Wisconsin legislature amended the law which had for so long been one of the dead
letters on Wisconsin statute books, which prohibited the sale of cigarettes to all people in the state. The new law, which is more practical, is quoted in part below: "Any person who shall,
by himself, his servant or agent, or by any other person, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretence, or by any device, sell, give, or otherwise dispose of to any minor, or any cigarette, cigar, or substitute therefor, or any paper made or prepared for the purpose of making cigarette or any substitute therefor, or the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in the manner hereinafter provided."

"Any person violating any of the provisions of this law shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars for the first offense, and by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars for the second or subsequent offense, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or both such fine and imprisonment. A second conviction for violation shall immediately result in a sentence of imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than two years of the person so convicted, and such person shall not be entitled to another license hereunder for a period of five years thereafter. This provision hereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers or manufacturers doing an interstate business with customers outside the state."

"Any minor being in possession of cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers, and being asked by any sheriff, deputy sheriff, police officer, village marshal, truant officer, public health officer or any other officer to tell where or from whom such cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers were obtained, who shall refuse to furnish such information shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than five dollars."

This law clearly places the culpability for the smoking among minors
for some time citizens of Janesville have been growing more and more im-pensed at the amount of smoking being done by the youth of the city and by the open violation of the above law by many tobacco dealers in the city. Numerous requests were made of various officials, but those people have always felt that any action was totally out of their jurisdiction. Of late, however, the demands have been so insistent that yesterday the chief of police, Peter Champlin, held a conference with Mayor Fathens, Director Hill of the continuation school and Principal Shearer of the high school. At this meeting each man pledged the hearty co-operation of his particular institution or office in the fight against the cigarette evil.

The provisions of the law make violation easily traceable, as soon as an official decides to prosecute dealers who break the law. When all the police officers and every teacher is given the power to quiz any minor who is seen smoking, and when that minor must divulge the source of his supply or pay the penalty therefor, that minor will either stop smoking where he is likely to be seen or the dealers will all be brought to terms and the supply cut off at the source.

Definite steps will be taken within the next few days to push the crusade against minors smoking. The chief of police is heartily in favor of the movement and will at once outline his campaign; it is probable that frequent conferences between the police and the school officials will co-ordinate the work of these two departments.

SHOPIERE FEUDISTS ARE BACK IN COURT

Charles Shimeall is Defendant on
Mrs. Capman's Charges.—Case
Concluded Today.

District Attorney Dunwiddie went to Beloit this afternoon to finish the examination of Charles Shimeall of Shopiere, haled into court on the charge of Mrs. Capman of an attempt to commit murder.

The examination of the Shopiere case, which has been continuing since to another chapter of the ever-recurring feud between the Capman and Shimeall families. The examination of Shimeall was begun Thursday morning at the court house. The positions of defendant and complaining witness were exactly reversed from those of two weeks ago when Shimeall was convicted Mrs. Capman of murderous assault.

Mrs. Capman and her husband, who were the only witnesses of the prosecution, told a weird story of how Shimeall drove up behind Mrs. Capman on the road near their home, made threats and pointed a revolver at her.

Mrs. Capman claimed she tried to turn her horse around and hit him with her. She admitted in court that she did not see which way he fired it.

Shimeall, his son, Clayton, and his agent, Daniel Shimeall, all insistently denied that there was any shot fired, or that Shimeall flourished a revolver. A farm hand by the name of Wheeler was called to the stand. He heard no shot although he was working in a nearby field at the time.

The examination had progressed no farther than this when Mrs. Capman informed District Attorney Dunwiddie that she could bring three women into court who had heard the shot fired. Mr. Dunwiddie at once adjourned the case until tomorrow when he expected to appear to testify some time today. C. L. Rosa conducted the case for Shimeall.

Campbell, Rev. John McKinney performing the ceremony. Miss Isabelle Campbell, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, while Edward Albright, brother of the bride, was best man.

After the wedding ceremony they returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs.
Marvin Helgeson on Locust street, where a sumptuous supper served. The dining room was pleasingly decorated, red and white being the predominating colors. Both Mr.
and Mrs. Campbell have always made Janesville their home and their many friends unite in extending their heartiest good wishes for their future happiness.

BELOIT ITALIAN WOMAN
MAKES SUICIDE ATTEMPT.
AUTHORITIES BELIEVE.

That the bullet wound which Mrs.
Angiolina Desvelli, a Beloit Italian woman is suffering with in the Emergency hospital, was self-inflicted, is the opinion held by District Attorney Dunwiddie and the Beloit police. Mrs. Desvelli who is young, claims the revolver went off by accident, a story which was corroborated by the police. The wound, which is in the woman's breast, is not deep and her speedy recovery is expected.

Humorous Persian Legend.
Concerning the origin of the Kurds there is a picturesque Persian legend. It relates that at the suggestion of the devil the serpents of the mythological monster Zohak were regularly fed upon human brains. Two youths who had been condemned to have their heads robbed for serpent sustenance escaped death by substituting goats' brains for their own. These youths became the progenitors of the Kurds.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN PROGRESSING WELL

Teams Hear Beloit Association Secretary Talk at Dinner—Organize Territory.

At the regular campaign dinner held last night of the teams in the city, the Y. M. C. A. campaign was the guest of honor. He delivered a very interesting talk in which he discussed the city and many of its institutions, and admitted that there were several features of Janesville public life that excited those of Beloit. He declared that there was no reason why the Y. M. C. A. should not receive the support of the citizens as well as a number of other civic organizations.

The plan of the campaign was rearranged last night, so that the city is now divided up into various districts, each district being visited by one of the teams. With this definite organization, the campaign teams hope to call on every prospect in the city to day and tomorrow. There are two days left and great many more canvassers to secure. "It means that every man on those teams, and everyone who has the best interests of the association at heart, will have to work hard to bring the membership up to our goal," said Secretary Barnard, this morning. "Other cities in the state have just concluded very successful membership campaigns; it is no reason why Janesville should fall behind. I believe that it would do it now rather than hesitate, as would establish a very fine record. The members of the Y. M. C. A. are all very well satisfied with the work done at this association. Much new apparatus has recently been installed in the gymnasium, and everything is in first class condition."

SCHOOLS RECEIVE VALUABLE GIFTS

Superintendent H. H. Faust Acknowledges Receipt of Gifts to the High School.

During the past few weeks the high school has been the recipient of a number of gifts from public spirited citizens of the community. Superintendent H. H. Faust takes this opportunity of thanking the donors, and of putting in a plea for all articles which might be used in the day and evening schools. Mr. Faust's statement follows:

"In behalf of the schools we wish to acknowledge the useful and valuable gifts that have been made during the past few months. G. P. Woods presented the school with a number of valuable articles to be used in the departments of science and history. The collection of rare articles of historical and geographical value. We wish to commend the spirit that actuates these gifts and use the incident to call attention to the fact that the schools can make use of all articles of scientific, geographical, historical and literary value which are of interest and value. All such articles will be presented and used abundantly in furthering the work of the schools in these branches."

"As our modern schools cover a very wide range of activities, gifts of practically every description are welcomed and will be used in some department. Books, reference works, collections of all kinds, pictures, woods, metals, machines and machine parts, and tools of every description will find a home in some department of school work."

RELIGION A FACTOR IN CHINESE POLITICS

Ultra Republicans' Efforts to Abolish Confucianism Stir Up A Furor.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peking, Oct. 20.—Because of the late Yuan Shikai's espousal of Confucianism and the important part that religion, or philosophy, played in the effort to restore the monarchy, ultra-republican members of parliament have recently made an attempt to abolish Confucianism by legislation on the theory that such action would grant greater freedom of the conscience and insure the perpetuity of the Republic.

This step aroused great indignation among the modern admirers of Confucius, and called forth a shower of protests. Kang Yuwei, the distinguished scholar, who is among the prominent publicists who oppose the eradication of Confucianism, telegraphed to the central government, declaring that the Confucian religion is distinctly the religion of China, and that if it is rejected Chinese would become like brutes. "What would be the use of the spears," he asked, "if they be not employed for the worship of Confucius?"

Premier Tuan Chi-jui replied that the public has great reverence for the Confucius, but that this reverence is in the hearts of the public and that it is no longer necessary for them to prostrate their body in homage to show their respect for China's great sage.

In spite of the efforts of politicians to keep religion out of the political turmoil in China, various religious Confucian have been able to intensify the internal troubles of the Chinese republic. China has no state religion, even Yuan Shikai did not profess any particular religion. Confucian teachers, Buddhist, Taoist and Lama priests all enjoyed his patronage. Representatives of many religions participated in his funeral. With this definite organization, the campaign teams hope to call on every prospect in the city to day and tomorrow. There are two days left and great many more canvassers to secure. "It means that every man on those teams, and everyone who has the best interests of the association at heart, will have to work hard to bring the membership up to our goal," said Secretary Barnard, this morning. "Other cities in the state have just concluded very successful membership campaigns; it is no reason why Janesville should fall behind. I believe that it would do it now rather than hesitate, as would establish a very fine record. The members of the Y. M. C. A. are all very well satisfied with the work done at this association. Much new apparatus has recently been installed in the gymnasium, and everything is in first class condition."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Charles Kent is one of the most favorably known of the older characters on the stage. His work on the legitimate stage was for years acclaimed as unexcelled. In his thirty years of professional work Mr. Kent supported Julia Neilson, Clara Morris, Edwin Booth, Richard Mansfield and H. A. Kendall.

He had extensive experience as a delineator of Shakespearean roles and appeared for years in prominent stock companies. Mr. Kent is popularly known as "the dean of the screen" because of the personality he has imparted to the hundreds of parts enacted before Vitaphone cameras. His white hair, his aristocratic bearing, his quaint style and careful emotional portrayals have made him a cherished character in the photoplay realm.

In "A Price for Folly," "The Supreme Temptation," "Kennedy Square," and "The Vital Question," he finds him in the roles that have made him esteemed in the eyes of the public.

MME. PETROVA IN "THE BLACK BUTTERFLY"

Mme. Petrova is hard at work on a new five-part wonderplay with the attractive title, "The Black Butterfly." The story is the ground of Mrs. L. Case Russell. The scene of "The Black Butterfly" is laid "somewhere in France," and the action, continuing through several years, culminates in the time of the present war.

Mme. Petrova has the part of a star of the Folies Bergere, a position which the gifted actress herself formerly held. Experiments of scientific laboratory, peasant life in France, and the gaiety of Paris are contrasted in this photoplay. Burton L. King is again Mme. Petrova's co-star. The action is set in the time of the French Revolution. The story is the ground of Mrs. L. Case Russell. The scene of "The Black Butterfly" is laid "somewhere in France," and the action, continuing through several years, culminates in the time of the present war.

LIKES STUDIO LIFE BETTER THAN HEAVEN

"My idea of heaven," said Hampton Del Ruth, assistant manager of production of a well known company, "is placed where everyone is happy. No one needs a comedy motion picture to cheer him up. Where perfect scenarios could be had for the asking—in short, where worries of a studio could never exist." All of which sounds as though Hampton Del Ruth has found comedy labor, with all its trials and tribulations, more enjoyable than heaven could be.

William Clifford, movie star recruited from the stage, was on the leg to contend at a porch party in Hawaii. He had felt the insect crawling up his ankle, but paid no attention to it, thinking he was being tickled by the playful Hawaiian lady of high rank, who occupied the chair to his left. It happened in Honolulu.

Valkyrien, otherwise the Baroness De Witz, and by either name a dancer of some note, is to dance in a movie which makes her the white goddess of a wild tribe of ostrich hunters. It is called "Hidden Valley."

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

"Pom-Pom," a joyous comic opera with a happy-go-lucky story, Mitzi Hajos, the most fetching figure in crossers that grace the stage, and a big ensemble of musical stars, with an immense scenic production painted by Joseph Urban, are all features, promised by Henry W. Lawson, manager of the theatre, Monday evening, Oct. 23rd. The production comes here direct from Chicago, where it has just closed a long engagement at the Illinois Theatre. Mitzi Hajos, assisted by the droll comedian, Tom McNaughton, who appeared with her in "The Spring Maid," and the same splendid cast of principals which made such a brilliant success of "Pom-Pom" in New York. There is an accompanying orchestra of thirty musicians to render the delightful score which was composed by George Fox. The book and lyrics of "Pom-Pom" were written by Anne Caldwell, who wrote "Chin-Chin" for Montgomery and Stone.

This is a real comic opera and it is said to offer unusual opportunities to the young star. "Pom-Pom" is a little musical comedy actress, who, while making her first appearance in the role of a pickpocket, is mistaken for a real one and carried away to prison. How she escapes with a gang of thieves and joins them in their rendezvous, and wins a handsome mate is told in a gay way to lifting music. "Pom-Pom" is said to be the greatest success Mr. Savage has offered since "The Merry Widow."

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Five big feature acts is the way the vaudeville bill for this week at the New Myers Theatre is announced. It is the aim of Manager Bransky to so diversify his bill that there will be constant variety at this theatre every week-end. The bill is announced in another part of the paper.

Tying It Out

Now wasn't that a shame? Here was that beautiful raft, floating there just as though it had been made by some one who knew the water before in all his whole life, and he thought it looked awfully well, awfully wet, and he didn't like it.

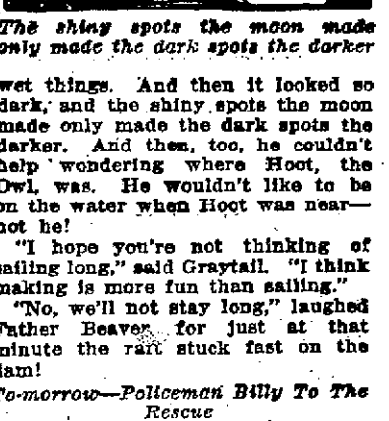

Father Beaver saw how the raft floated, and how deeply the little logs dropped into the water, he knew it wouldn't go over the dam. "Why in the world didn't I think of that dam?" he asked in despair. "I knew it was there all the time, but I never once thought about it!"

"Yes, isn't that the way?" sighed Graytail, with much sympathy. "That's always my fix. I think sometimes that I wouldn't have any trouble at all, not a bit, if I could remember and notice all the things I really know. But I forget, and trouble comes." And Graytail fetched up a big sigh from the bottom of his back paw.

That sigh comforted Father Beaver greatly. You know how it is. You tell your troubles and somebody sighs and answers back how very badly off you are, and then all of a sudden you don't feel badly off at all. That was just the way with Father Beaver. As soon as Graytail began to sigh, he stopped sighing and began to plan. "Let's get on it anyway, Graytail," he said, "and see what it does. Maybe it will sail through the place where the dam is broken."

"Maybe it will," answered Graytail, "but I don't know if it doesn't seem likely. But I'm willing to try." So Father Beaver got aboard and steadied the raft and helped Graytail to get on too. Then Father Beaver shoved off from the shore and away they rode.

"Mr. but this is fun!" cried Father Beaver. His eyes danced and he was

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been very much worried lately in regard to a few arguments which have occurred to me. Do you consider it proper for a young couple who have been going together for several months, but are not engaged, but the best of friends, to pass beyond the conventional hand-clasp as long as the boy respects the girl's practices. He means what he says. Love asserts itself without kisses. If it is founded on nothing more substantial than kisses it soon wanes.

(2) The number of times a boy kisses a girl is really no indication of how much he is very fond of her, but it is just as apt to show that he cares for that and nothing more. A man does not propose for fun or to get practice. He means what he says. Love asserts itself without kisses. If it is founded on nothing more substantial than kisses it soon wanes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am fourteen years old. A boy at school gave me a friendship link. Should I keep it? (2) Do you think it is wrong for boys and girls to write notes to each other when at school? (3) A boy winks at me all the time and I can't help smiling. What should I do? (4) When you are out walking and a boy whistles at you, what should you do? Sometimes I turn around when I don't mean to. Would the boy think I was flirting with him?

(5) I do not think girls should accept friendship links from boys. (6) They ought to be paying at least.

Bulgarian bacillus is going back. Still, soured milk (which is rich in lactic acid bacilli) tends to improve the condition of the intestines and when the canal is overruled with Colon bacilli, as it is in many cases of auto-intoxication. Intestinal or food stasis, and various digestive disorders, and even flatulence, buttermilk is a healthful beverage.

Household Hints

FUDGE RECIPES.
Chocolate Fudge.—One cup milk, two cups sugar, pinch of salt, one tablespoon lard or butter, two squares (two ounces) chocolate, one teaspoon vanilla extract. Put lard, sugar and salt and chocolate into a bowl and stir and boil until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water, or 240 degrees Fahrenheit. Remove from fire, add extract, allow to stand a minute, then beat until creamy. Pour into greased tin and mark off into squares.
Peanut Fudge.—Two cups brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one cup chopped peanuts, one cup chopped vanilla extract. Boil milk, sugar, lard and salt until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water, or 240 degrees Fahrenheit. Remove from fire and add nuts and vanilla; beat until creamy. Pour into greased tin and, when cold, cut in cubes. All measures must be level. If butter is used instead of lard, omit salt.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Tomato Grapes.—Conserve—Take four pounds of grapes, cut each in halves and remove seeds. Put through food chopper, measure, add a little water, if necessary, and boil twenty minutes. Add juice of two oranges, half pound seedless raisins, one cup ground peanuts and an equal weight of sugar. Boil from ten to fifteen minutes.
Yellow Tomato Honey-Seal.—Take four pounds of grapes, cut into quarters (if large ones are used) and put into kettle to boil. Stir constantly till fruit is well broken; add equal weight of sugar, remove skins, and add juice of one orange to one quart of fruit. Boil till clear.
Pear-fig Marmalade.—Peel and cut into small pieces four pounds of pears and one pound of figs. Put them into preserving kettle with neither water nor sugar; boil gently, stirring often, until fruit is reduced to pulp. Then add three pounds of sugar, juice of two oranges, and boil about twenty minutes.
Orange-Pumpkin Marmalade.—Four pounds of pumpkin (pie pumpkins are best) cut in three, oranges, three lemons, four pounds sugar. Slice pumpkin into cubes, pour sugar over dry, mix and let stand overnight. Add juice of two oranges and boil about twenty minutes. Boil the rinds till tender, chop fine and add to pumpkin. Simmer slowly for an hour or more. Be careful not to let it get mushy in the bottom. The beauty is to have it all in separate particles with the flavor of each fruit just a little different.

Quince Cheese.—Bake quinces, remove skins and press through a sieve. Take equal weight of sugar, moisten with water, boil till strings, add quince pulp, and boil till thick. Remove from stove, stir till cool, then add either almonds or walnuts, and stir again till cold. Put in greased mold, let stand a day, then remove and slice. Excellent for luncheon with cold meats, especially sliced tongue.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Blankets or Rugs.—Have one or two small brass hooks screwed under the windowsill; will keep blankets or rugs from being blown out of window while a child is sitting on them. A hook fastened to the means of a safety pin and is held securely. When not in use the hook is not noticeable, being under the ledge. This said many a trip down stairs after a blanket which has slipped to the ground below.

For Protecting Curtains.—Put hooks on both sides of window casings, three or four inches from top, then, when raising windows at night, lift the curtain by the cord and loop it over the upper hook. This protects curtains from wind and rain and does not muss them.

EGG OMELET WITH OYSTERS.
Stew a dozen oysters in their own liquor and a very little water. Roll two or three lumps of butter the size of butterflats in flour and put in and let it come to a boil. Salt it well; add black or cayenne pepper to suit your taste. Take out the oysters, chop them thick and add a little butter. Put the oysters in again and set the sauce pan in which they are back on the stove while the eggs are being fried. Beat six to ten eggs until very light, and add to them two table-spoons of cream or rich milk; fry in a well-buttered frying pan. When done remove to a hot platter or deep plate, and pour the oyster sauce over it. Serve well hot.

GRAPE JELL.
For light-colored jell use half-ripe grapes. Ripe grapes make a dark jell. Stem and wash the grapes. To eight quarts of grapes add two quarts of water. Cook until the boiling point is reached. Shake kettle or press fruit down with the spoon. If stirred the pulp mixes with the juice and is not so clear. Pour in bag and drain without squeezing. To each pint of juice add a pint of sugar and cook ten or fifteen minutes. Green grape jell is made in the same manner.

Training a Husband.
Morris Gets a Glimpse Into Another Wife.

"My name is Southy. I am to deliver a lecture this evening at the school house. The entertainment committee directed me to come to this address"—referring to a card.

"Oh, yes, I was expecting you. Come right in." She led the way to a large, comfortable furnished living room.

"Willie, get up and give the gentleman that chair." Willie remained immovable as a statue. "You let me alone, I tell you. I ain't doing nothing. I don't have to give up my chair to him. Let go of that!" These words were spoken in a tone of command. Finally the locked door was put between the child and his mother, who came back breathing hard but with the air of triumph to her.

"The boy gets worse every day. I am determined he shall not get ahead of me, however. The fact that he is screaming and kicking was going on to lessen the mother's sense of triumph. Morris tried to appear oblivious of the uproar and made a feeble attempt to carry on a conversation, but even the fragment of attention broke down at last and with scolding cheeks his hostess excused herself and left the room. The screaming began to subside a few minutes and then began to recede. It was waited to him in crescendo and diminuendo effects as the opening and closing of doors regulated the volume. Finally clapped his hands over his ears as soon as the mother left the room and frowned fiercely, eyed at the door. "Great powers! Do people have to live with such things as that," he thought desperately. His mind traveled to his own home where Marian was probably at that minute setting the table and the children. He reddened as he thought how happy the children were to be free from the damper of his presence. They were laughing or running in gleeful freedom. Marian did not mind noise, "so long as it was a pleasant noise," she had said. He understood better now what she had meant.

The appearance of his hostess put an end to these thoughts.

For a Quick Pick-up Luncheon try that most delicious, nourishing, whole wheat food, Triscuit, the shredded wheat wafer-toast. It contains all the body-building material in the whole wheat grain, including the bran-coat which promotes healthful and natural bowel movement. It is real whole wheat bread without yeast, baking powder or chemicals of any kind—an ideal food for children because it compels thorough mastication and insures perfect digestion. A crisp, tasty "snack" for picnics or excursions. Toast in the oven and serve with butter or soft cheese. Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

stirred the pulp mixes with the juice and is not so clear. Pour in bag and drain without squeezing. To each pint of juice add a pint of sugar and cook ten or fifteen minutes. Green grape jell is made in the same manner.

The appearance of his hostess put an end to these thoughts.

"Our supper is ready. Come this way, please." She was smiling as if nothing had happened. Willie did not appear at supper, much to Morris' relief, but a younger child managed to rob the meal of all comfort by his constant interruptions. Morris marvelled at the patience and good nature of the father, who seemed to be able to continue the conversation undisturbed. The lecture went off successfully and Morris with restored good humor sat down in his room to think over the events of the day. He found his thoughts wandering back to the patient, sweet tempered wife sitting alone by the fire at home.

"I always thought the children were needy and have found a great deal of fault with them. I begin to think I do not appreciate my blessings when I get a glimpse of other homes." "Marian sitting alone was thinking: 'I am glad Morris could not hear the noise the boys made over their pillow fight tonight. He would blame me for allowing it.' She sighed, 'I intend to let them have as much fun as I can while he is away, since they must forever be represented while he is here.'"

National Flag.
Each of the stars in the flag stands for a state. The 13 red and white stripes represent the original "Old Thirteen" states. It is said that John Paul Jones was the first to fly the flag on the ocean. But, like most every other question of its consequence, this is a subject of dispute.

GINGLES' JINGLES

ENJOY.

Just enjoy and be glad, never pays to be sad, if the clouds gather—beat it like fun, never stick in the shade, from the dampness just fade, when they start to collect, you must run. You must pull with a haste, not a moment don't waste, crank your bus for a spin far away, you are safe if you go, give the dampness no show, see the light—know it always is day. Not so far from the spot where your dense line of thought, makes you feel you're alone in the world, makes you want to cash in, makes you feel you can't win, that your banner shall never be unfurled. You can step from the gloom and give it lots of room, smile at fate, make a friend of your work, you are here but a time and I think it a crime to just torture yourself and to shirk. Never facing the sun as the journey you run, always watching the shadows you cast, face about with a cheer, switch your cares in to clear and enjoy—for this trip is your Spring Jingle last.

PETER'S DENIAL

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible
Institute of Chicago

TEXT—And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him: Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.—Luke 22:61, 62.

Peter never forgot his denial. Speaking to the Jews he says, "Ye denied the holy one and the just," and in his second epistle he refers to those who denied the Lord that bought them. At the point where he was supposed to be strong, he failed. He is noted as the confessor of Christ, yet he came his denial. He was the brave man who undertook, to defend Christ in the garden, yet he covered before the servants in the high priest's palace. He was not in danger of being killed if he had confessed Christ, but denied him to save himself from being taunted. And all this occurred on the same night in which he had received the bread and wine from the hands of his Master, and had submitted to having his feet washed by him! We are only kept from chiding him because we are reminded of our own failures and our denials of Christ.

The Sin of Profanity.
Added to the sin of denial was that of profanity, for we are told that he began to curse and to swear, saying he knew not the man. The sin of profanity clings to a man, and the tendency sometimes appears even after conversion. Many have failed at this point, although delivered from other sins. An old writer has pointed out the folly of it in these words: "The devil tempts men through their ambition, their cupidity, or their appetite, until he comes to the profane swearer, whom he clutches without any reward." There is a melancholy comfort in the fact that Peter seemed to feel they would not suspect him of being a disciple if they should hear him use profane language; the world expects things of Christians.

Several elements enter into the story of Peter's denial. First of all, we notice his self-confidence. "If all shall be offended in thee, I will never be offended." His failure, doubtless revealed to him his weakness, and was used of God in bringing him to a better mind. By such testings we learn our own helplessness and are driven to the strong one for strength. In his epistle, Peter emphasizes the value of meekness and godly fear.

"No Business With the Funksies."
Another secret of Peter's failure is found in the society he kept. He had followed his Lord afar off, and when he came into the palace, sat down with the high priest's servants. As an old Scotch woman said, "he had no business with the funksies." It is difficult to maintain a Christian profession even when we must be among the ungodly, but there is great danger when we choose them for our companions.

Again, the element of surprise has to be reckoned with. Peter would have been brave in the garden in open conflict with Christ's enemies, but he did not expect to be assailed as he sat by the fire that night. Earnest Christians learn to dread temptations which approach with the stealth of a serpent. The writer recalls the occasion when he first saw a "sensitive plant," and remembers his surprise when its leaves withered at the approach of his hand. If we are to escape better than Peter did, our souls must be so tender that the very approach of temptation will cause them to shrink in dread and hide themselves in Christ.

Yet this man was restored even after such a failure. There were four steps in his restoration.

Steps Back to Christ.
First, there was the look of Christ. After the crowing of the cock, we are told the Lord turned and looked upon Peter. What a look of wounded love that must have been! Yet we should not forget that the same sad, piercing gaze is turned upon us when we grieve Christ.

Secondly, the Lord sent a special message to Peter on the morning of the resurrection (Mark 16:7).

Thirdly, he had a private interview with this apostle on the day he arose (Luke 24:34; 1 Cor. 15:5).

Finally, when he appeared to the seven on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, he rebuked Peter most fully. The story is told in John 21, and is worthy of careful perusal. Three times the Lord asked him if he loved him, and the apostle had thrice denied him, so he was allowed to confess him three times. Poor Peter might have thought he would never again be entrusted with responsibility, but three times the Lord bade him feed his flock. As a climax, this man who had said he would follow Christ to death, but had failed so shamefully, was told he would, after all, have the privilege of dying for his Lord. What comfort here for the backslider! With what new meaning may we sing, "He restoreth my soul."

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Fourth Quarter. Lesson IV. Acts XXVI, 24-32. October 22, 1916. PAUL'S DEFENSE BEFORE AGRIPPA.

These were holiday times in Caesarea. The marble metropolis by the sea was in festive dress to welcome the descendants of her founder. There had been a succession of fetes in the amphitheater and banquets in the palace. But "after many days" military, naval and gladiatorial spectacles began to cloy upon the royal guests. Festus besought himself of an expedient. He would by way of variety give Agrippa and Bernice an intellectual tournament. He would call the Nazarene enthusiast from prison and the company of his yellow parchment, and have him give an exhibition of that thrilling oratorical power of which he had himself already had a sample. He would by this means "kill two birds with one stone," entertain his guests and at the same time find the means of extricating himself from an awkward plight. Agrippa's familiarity with Jewish questions might serve him well in the wording of a communication to the emperor in the case of this prisoner, who, though so manifestly innocent, had been compelled to appeal his case through the procurator's failure to acquit him.

Festus determined that the spectacle of the audience chamber should not be a whit below that of the theater in scenic effectiveness. The phantom sovereign should be tickled by being made the presiding officer at a mock trial. It was a splendid assemblage. The chiefs, military, civil, and social, were there. Festus wore the crimson robe of office, Agrippa the insignia of royalty. Bernice blazed in jewels.

On the same spot, the current realignments of the day appeared in triangular antagonism. Heathenism had its representative in Festus—a confessedly nobler character than Felix—but before the interview ended displaying by his rude exclamation the inveterate obtuseness of the heathen mind in spiritual matters. To the procurator Paul's talk about a resurrection was prima facie evidence that the mind of the prisoner was unhinged. He had no such conception of the deity, his power and to a, as to make the raising of the dead credible to him. The cynicism of the heathen not only put him out of touch with Paul, but left him powerless to even understand the self-oblivious spirit of the great missionary. To the Roman official the ideal of life was to steer between the capricious anger of the emperor on the one hand, and that of the heterogeneous population he governed on the other.

Judaism had a representative on this occasion, better known to history than the one who stood for it in the scene which transpired in the same room two years before. Agrippa, the guardian of the temple, nominator of high priests, elaborately trained in all matters of Jewish religion and casuistry, was a very incarnation of Hebrewism. Thoroughly versed though he was in the prophets, he, with most Hebrews, had failed to perceive that the Jewish seers pictured a suffering as well as a victorious Messiah. Agrippa could not but see the completeness with which Paul freed himself from the charge of apostasy; he could not but see the true identity between Christianity and Judaism; but while tacitly admitting it, he lacked the moral courage to avow it; and as Felix in the same place had soothed his conscience with a pout, so Agrippa parried the his with a jest.

At the third angle, as agitating representative of Christianity, stood Paul, two years nearer his coronation than when he last occupied such a position. Paul might have sulked in his cell. Agrippa had no jurisdiction. The case was already appealed. It could never be tried again save in Caesar's court. Paul might have shown his plique at Festus' tardiness in acquitting a prisoner whose enemies had not been able to gather any evidence against him in the two years of his illegal imprisonment. Had Paul taken this tack, in which he would have been entirely justified under the circumstances, the showy drawing-room audience which Festus had planned for the amusement of his royal guests might have been Hamlet with "Hamlet left out." But Festus had counted not in vain upon the ingenious character of his captive. Paul promptly appeared when summoned. He recognized this as one of the opportunities which he should Ananias had assured him he should have of bearing the Lord's name before kings. He saw in Agrippa, with all his regal state, and Bernice, whose charms neither Titus nor Vespasian could resist, the children of one who, hard by the very place where he stood, was smitten of God and eaten by worms. These pompous inanities of reflected power were all uncovered to the practiced eye of Paul. A dying man, he addressed dying men.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
Paul did his utmost for Festus and those whom he represented. He set forth astonishing truths in such an astonishing manner as to draw from the lips of the procurator a loud cry like that of the centurion at the crucifixion, only not so candid—an ejaculation which checked "the majestic stream of the apostle's eloquence, but did not otherwise ruffle his exquisite did not otherwise ruffle his exquisite courtier."

long docket of Nero's court, Paul was instantly acquitted, and came down from the Golden House on the Palatine, a free man once more, after four years of unjust imprisonment.

BADGERS ARE READY FOR HASKELL BRAVES HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS JEFFERSON TOMORROW

Final Scrimmage Is Held With All Spectators Excluded—Look Ahead for Chicago Game.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—Final scrimmage practice in preparation for the Haskell Indians was given the Badger men this afternoon by Coach Withington. The practice was secret, not even newspaper reporters being allowed within the enclosed canvas field or in the stands. Dr. Withington had a force of assistant managers patrolling the fences around the field. According to the men, after the practice was completed, it was a strenuous affair, consisting of not only a long scrimmage drill but also practice in the execution of the Chicago offense and defense. The freshmen team lined up against the varsity eleven and ran Chicago plays which Coach Jones had given them. They succeeded with fair success in penetrating the Badger line.

Hope to Beat Indians. Dr. Withington is confident of winning from the Haskell team on Saturday and is devoting his time to the men in preparation to the game with Stagg's men. The case with which Notre Dame won from the Redskins proved them a weak squad. Dr. Withington, however, will take no chances and has decided to start the game with the regulars. A sufficient lead is gained he will use his second string men.

This week and next has been termed "Pig Week" by Dr. Withington. This new feature was brought here by the new coach from Harvard, where it is an annual institution. Harvard at the present time is in the midst of their annual "Pig Week." From the information obtainable it means a lot of work for the men in the scrimmaging line.

Really no changes will be made in the lineup for the game. The same men who faced Lawrence and South Dakota will be back at their places. Captain Meyers will play end, with Red Kelly on the other extremity. Meyers with his return to the game last week played a fast game and is regaining his form of last year, when he was called on to play in the conference. Gray, Miller, and Kocik will take care of the tackles. Miller and Kocik are veterans of last year, while Gray is a member of last year's squad and a former star of Milwaukee normal. Hancock and Gunderson seem to have little competition for guards as they are by far the best men out. Back are veterans and are secure in the guard positions. Hinkle, Gary and Carpenter are of mediocre material. Kieckhefer will play center.

No Change in Backfield. Dr. Withington is satisfied with his backfield and will make no change, although Taylor seems to be the weak spot. The quarterback, while being a good runner, seems to lack the generalship needed to run the team. In both the Lawrence and South Dakota games he lost several chances to score by his lack of experience. Olson and Simpson will play halfbacks and backs. The twenty-two center-plunger, will be at fullback. Elliot, Kreutz and Stark compose the second string backs, who will undoubtedly be given a chance to enter the game.

The veteran Paddy Livingston, who played with the Sioux City Western league team the past year, will, it is reported, be signed by the St. Louis Cardinals for next season as a coach for Miller Huggins' young pitchers. One of the reasons given for the failure of Huggins' pitchers to come through is that they lacked a veteran catcher to work them out in the bullpen.

Team Has a Hard Week of Scrimmage.—Want Big Crowd Out to Support Team.

With hopes high and in good fighting form the Janesville team will tomorrow meet the Jefferson bunch at the local fairgrounds. Throughout the week, Coach Keck has been putting the team through a series of hard scrimmages, which have hardened them up considerably and have instilled a little real football into a number of the boys.

Last Saturday's game was an encouraging victory, but the coaching staff has taken good care that the team should not become overconfident. Jefferson has a much stronger team than Evansville. There will be little of that easy gaining around either end that featured the Evansville game.

In an effort to get the school out for this game, a big massmeeting was held just before the Senior-Freshman reception this afternoon. "Some school spirit is needed to support any football team, and one that has had as hard sledding as has this one deserves all the support they can get," said one of the coaches, apropos of the massmeeting.

YALE PLAYS TODAY; IMPORTANT GAMES SET FOR SATURDAY

Blue Gridiron Warriors Meet Virginia This Afternoon—Several Conference Games Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, Oct. 20.—Yale is the only one of the big eastern teams which will not be in action tomorrow, as it will stage its weekly game this afternoon in the Yale Bowl with Virginia Poly as its opponent.

Harvard has the Massachusetts Aggies on its card for tomorrow's tussle; Princeton will line up against Lafayette at Princeton; Cornell will tackle Bucknell at Ithaca; and Dartmouth will do battle with Georgetown at Hanover. The Navy and Army eleventh will be in action, the former against West Virginia at Annapolis and the Cadets against Trinity at West Point.

Perhaps the most important conflict will be staged in the far west, where Nebraska university and the Oregon Aggies are due for an intersectional clash at Portland, Ore. These two teams have been supreme in their respective sections and the result of their contest will be interesting, especially to middle and far western football devotees. Nebraska's coach recently left the coaching job at the Oregon school to take up the duties at Lincoln, and this will add to the rivalry between the schools.

The big nine will be well represented on the day's schedule, every one of them excepting the exception of Indiana being billed for a combat. Chicago should have easy sailing against Northwestern, while Minnesota should have no trouble with South Dakota.

Wisconsin will meet the Haskell Indians at Madison, and Iowa will clash with Purdue at Iowa City. Illinois and Ohio State will battle in a conference game at Urbana.

MORRIS MILLER

Nap Rucker, who, according to McGraw, is the greatest southpaw that ever curved a ball over the plate, has pitched his last game for the Robins. The famous knuckle ball artist stated in the clubhouse after the last game at Brooklyn that he was not coming back to Brooklyn next year. Rucker had his greatest wish satisfied when he replaced Cheney on the mound in the eighth inning. Nap has always longed to pitch in a world's series game, and after Marquard left, the boy and Cheney took his place in the fifth. Rucker sent his once famous pitcher out into centerfield to warm up. As Nap came in to take Cheney's place in the eighth inning the crowd in the clubhouse after the game was their idol in former days and they wanted to see him in this world's series, even if he only pitched one ball, so that he could get his name in the box score. Rucker finished his long and brilliant career by fanning Jannvin for the third out in the ninth inning.

Harry "Dutch" Myers, centerfielder for the Brooklyn national league club, who knocked out the first home run of the world's series at St. Louis in other sensational plays, will be given a big public reception upon his return from East Liverpool, O., his home town. He will be greeted at Pittsburgh by a delegation of East Liverpool fans and will be the central figure in a big demonstration. A brass band has been secured, hundreds of horns and a great quantity of red fire has been purchased for the occasion.

Many humorous stories are told about George Stallings and his "bonheads." The best one was when George was managing the Yanks, when they played on the old billtop grounds. Ray Demmitt was then with the team, and a Yank was on third, with two out. Ray turned to the big chief for advice, and asked: "Shall I try to bring him in with a long fly, Mr. Stallings?" "You better fly into the clubhouse," said the irate George, "or I'll massacre you." Then there is the more recent story about an incident during the Braves' pennant drive in 1914. "Now, if Gowdy gets on 'Bonhead' will bat for the pitcher," said George. Gowdy got on and every Boston reserve ran out and grabbed a stick. If we recall right, however, Stallings had particular reference that day to John Devore.

The Boston Braves' management just couldn't get away from this morning game stuff. After putting on a sunrise stunt with the Pirates the Braves' officials wanted the Giants to play a morning game and then two in the afternoon, so as to complete the schedule. The excuse of Boston was that it "still had a chance" for the pennant. Naturally John McGraw refused to fall for any of the peculiar Boston stuff, wherein he had more courage than Jimmy Callahan of the Pirates and the three games in one day stunt was not pulled off. McGraw knew there is a rule against it. Evidently the Boston football experts don't know there are any baseball rules.

Marty Cross, a younger brother of the better known Leach, has been beating everyone he meets around Gotham and is piling up a neat record. He outpointed Paul Doyle in ten fast rounds recently.

Ty Cobb failed to lead the American league for ten straight seasons after all. He has done some very clever batting just the same.

The members of the New York National league team will be in a fine frame of mind to greet Manager John McGraw next spring at training camp, for the players will not soon forget the slam he gave them at the close of the year.

A Successful Auction Depends On the Advertising

Gazette advertising is an absolute assurance of a good sale, good prices and good crowds.

Here Is Another Letter:

Milton Jct., Wis., Oct. 18, 1916.

The Gazette, Janesville—

Gentlemen:—I wish to assure you that my recent auction sale was a success in every respect. I feel that the advertisements run in the Gazette for two issues is largely responsible for this as the sale was largely attended by people from a distance, who purchased most of the high priced stuff. Col. Dooley, who conducted the sale, also deserves credit for making this sale a success. My experience with this sale convinced me that sale bills are a thing of the past.

Respectfully yours,
CLAYTON SPAULDING.

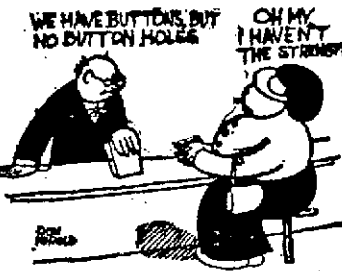

Send for free booklet on how to prepare for an auction and also for a blank on which to list your articles.

A RETALIATION.
Customer—So you can't hear the famous pianist?
Barber—No. Them long-haired fellows never patronize me—why should I patronize them?

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

BUTTONHOLES

This is a very serious essay today. It is about a great social wrong. Read it.
Mighty furnaces sigh night and day, melting up rubber, celluloid, old iron, asphalt, etc., for buttons. Scientists sweat and squirm, trying to work out new formulas for buttons. Railroad trains fit buttons and thither and every other direction, bearing buttons from the great button centers to the corners of the globe. Steamships full of buttons cross and recross the ocean. Buttons, today, are a big industry, a business, a science, an art. We would hate to say how many millions were produced in this country last year. There were a good many. But what about buttonholes?
Nothing!
Stop and think. You have not seen any railroad trains or ocean liners passing your house LOADED WITH BUTTONHOLES! No! There are no buttonhole furnaces sighing night and day. No!
Then where do we get our buttonholes?
—We make them OURSELVES! Let that soak in.
We can buy buttons, but we have to shift as we can for our own buttonholes. Let that soak in.
There is a reason for this scarcity in buttonholes. The button manufacturers are to blame. They should make buttonholes—not we. Why don't they?
Simply because there is such a meager profit in buttonholes.
They say, "Buy our buttons and pay for money and do the best you can for your buttonholes."
This condition has existed long enough. The time has come when the Federal government or somebody should force the buttonhole manufacturers to SUPPLY THE BUTTONHOLE FOR EVERY BUTTON.
Write to your Congressman today.

Opal Feels Climatic Changes. The opal is a stone "with a temper." The diamond rises superior to climate, as does the ruby, the emerald and the sapphire, but the opal is of such delicate organization that, when exposed to severe cold, it loses color, and under the influence of excessive moisture, becomes dull. It is a curious fact, however, that the temperature of one's hand will cause it to resume its wonted fire and brilliancy, as will also be the case when it is exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

OWEN SHOWS NEED FOR PROTECTION AT CLOSE OF WAR

Reedsville, Wis., Oct. 20.—Continuing his campaign tour in the interest of the straight republican ticket, Attorney General Owen took up another phase of the national situation here Thursday night, in which he pictured the necessity of having a republican administration in power at the close of the present European war.

Mr. Owen, quoted from President Wilson's "History of the American People" to describe what would follow a European war, and used the president's own arguments to prove that a protective tariff would be necessary. He also quoted from the debate in the United States senate on the Underwood tariff law to prove that it was passed not as a protective tariff measure, but as a tariff for revenue only.

"The present war in Europe," he said, "is not the only great European war we have had during the life of this nation. The Napoleonic war ended one hundred years ago. Concerning the effect of that war upon the people of this country, Woodrow Wilson in the third volume of his 'History of the American People' says:

"Peace changed the face of trade. English merchants poured their goods again into the American ports so long shut against them by embargoes and war. Manufactures had sprung up while the ports were closed. In the year 1815 close upon $50,000,000 had been invested in the manufacture of textile fabrics alone. The new movement did not stop with the establishment of cotton factories. The manufacture of wool and hemp and even silk was added. Iron manufactures, long ago set up, but tentative and feeble hitherto, increased from hundreds of thousands to millions in value under the stimulation of foreign trade cut off. Almost everything in general use in the country was sooner or later added to the growing list.

"Industry, long ago begun upon a small scale, took heart to grow, and those which Americans had not hitherto dreamed of attempting were heartily embarked upon. Distinct manufacturing regions began sensibly to develop in the middle states and in the east, with instincts and characteristics which statesmen could not afford to overlook. It was manifestly injurious to every young industry that a flood of English imports should continue to pour into the country at the open ports. The remedy was a protective tariff such as Mr. Hamilton had wished to see at first, and the young republican leaders of congress did not hesitate to advocate and establish it.

"Who can doubt that similar conditions will not follow the termination of the present war? We have now upon our statute books a democratic tariff bill. It is a tariff bill that was framed for revenue only in accordance with the life-long principles of the democratic party. No protective consideration was given in the framing of the bill. It was so expressly stated by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who had charge of the bill in the senate at the time it was passed, in reply to a question propounded to him by Senator McLean of Connecticut, he said:

"I do not know, Mr. President, what is the difference in the cost of producing this article here and abroad. I have not investigated that. We have not been trying to balance the difference in labor cost here and abroad because we were not trying to make a protective bill."

"And again he said:

"Now the senator from Connecticut is talking about protection. He says: 'One gives adequate protection and the other does not give adequate protection.' I have stated to the senator that we were not trying to give protection in the duties on imports here."

"The present tariff measure on the statute books of our country was framed after the fashion of every tariff measure constructed by the democratic party. They look only to one thing—the production of revenue. They give no heed or thought to the question of protection. The republican party maintains that we should have a protective tariff which will article here and the cost of producing that same article abroad. Now, how plain it is that if we are to do this in this country so that our American labor can live according to American standards it is absolutely essential that the products of American labor be protected from competition with the products of foreign labor. It is an immutable law of human nature that people will buy wherever they can buy the cheapest. It is also inevitable that a manufac-
